These programs were authored by Rachael Kane as part of a Fellowship for Diversity in Fine Arts at the Worcester Art Museum, a position generously funded by the Moggio Foundation. Many thanks to the Worcester Art Museum and the Moggio Foundation for their continued support of education and inclusiveness in the museum space.

This website and the Bullard exhibition would not have been possible except for the generosity of Frank J. Morrill, owner of the Bullard collection, who lovingly cared for Bullard’s glass negatives and alerted us to this exceptional historical treasure. Through his selfless dedication to this project he has made a priceless contribution to American history. Mr. Morrill was also a talented partner in researching the life of William Bullard and his photographs.

A special thanks to the many descendants of Bullard’s sitters and community members whose family stories and support greatly enriched this project. Clark University students enrolled in Professor Greenwood’s History 288: Public History in Spring 2015 and the Spring 2017 played an integral role in this project, in researching and writing about the Bullard photographs. We thank them for their hard work and passion.
